AROUND THE WORLD IN A DAY

Psychoanalysis and Art - a journey in the creative process

on Zoom platform

In the space between familiar and not-familiar, all kinds of encounters can be played out. Psychoanalysis meets the art in a space where both endeavour to find transformative potential. Looking inward and outward, they are trying to find ways of expressing their encounter with the unknown; finding expression and interpretation for what was experienced as unrepresented. The very nature of art and psychoanalysis is revolutionary because it is constantly questioning the states of being and, in turn, it is questioned by them. In this way, both psychoanalysis and art are inherently engaged with the process of how transformation happens. In the relational field, artistic and analytic creative process finds common ground, bringing emotion into play, and thereby its potential to become thinkable.

HOW - The webinars will be organized (on Zoom) from Sydney to Los Angeles, following the world clock across different time zones. In one day, artists and psychoanalysts (candidates and IPA members) from all over the world will participate in 5 webinars, witnessing the thought and creativity of each of their cultural backgrounds. Each webinar lasts two and a half hours and consists of a dialogue on the creative process between artists and psychoanalysts (open to interested people - including non-psychoanalysts). This is followed by workshops in small groups of candidates and psychoanalysts, allowing free associations and reflections upon the webinar contents. A sixth meeting for the participating candidates and psychoanalysts will be on March 25, 2021 at 8 pm (GMT) for a shared reflection on the activities carried out.
